Title: Work from Remote: An Overview of Cost and Performance Implications

WORK FROM REMOTE:
AN OVERVIEW OF COST AND PERFORMANCE IMPLICATIONS

Dr. Madhu Gupta*

ABSTRACT

Lockdowns and restrictions that were imposed on movements of people at the time of Pandemic, provided opportunity to organisation to test and experiment with work from home culture. Once the pandemic situation is over, organisations will evaluate whether work from home in general would be a better option for them or not. Many factors need to be considered by each organisation and it may result into multiple models of operations from complete work from home to mix of work from home and from office to complete work from office. The present paper discusses the different factors which affects cost and performance associated with this transformation process in different organisations. In the absence of statistical data and study on effect on productivity of an organisation that allows work from remote, subjective factors needs to be evaluated by concerned organisation and result will be very specific to them. In all, it is observed that, there is a good possibility that combination of work from home and remote may lead to better productivity and employee motivation and most of the organisation are going to have a Hybrid Workplace i.e., some professionals working from home, others from office and many others partially at home / office in near future.

Keywords: Remote Work, Work from Home, Telecommuting, Tele-working, Pandemic, Tele-work Management, Flexible Working.

Introduction

With Covid 19 pandemic, the world is coming to terms with many new normal, from promoting social distancing to dressing up with face masks. Lockdowns and restrictions that were imposed on movements of people at the time of Pandemic, provided opportunity to organisation to test and experiment with work from home culture. Not that work from home is a new thing, but in such a large scale, and being able to perform those activities from home that were otherwise always considered to require human interactions, was probably never thought of. This includes seminars & conferences (that were conducted with networking breaks), consultations, conducting important corporate and social meetings over virtual platforms etc.

It is natural that once the pandemic situation is over, organisations will evaluate whether work from home in general would be a better option for them or not. Many factors need to be considered such as technology, cost, quality, safety, security, comfort, performance etc, and it may result into multiple models of operations from complete work from home to mix of work from home and from office to complete work from office. Many big organisations like IBM, Google, Microsoft, Ford, Twitter etc. have already made announcements regarding this and are ready to allow their employees work from remote, partially or totally (Talky, 2021).

Depending upon availability of the technology, data security & confidentiality, impact on cost and productivity, innovation & team work, employee's attrition & acquisition, delivery model, leadership & motivation, employee preferences etc organisations are gradually changing their strategy over a period of time. Cost and performance are two major criteria that influences decision of an organisation to choose among these emerging models of working from office to working from remote. The present paper discusses the different factors which affects cost and performance associated with this transformation process in different organisations.

EMPLOYMENT AFTER RETIREMENT IN INDIA – AN EMPIRICAL STUDY

Dr Madhu Gupta
Associate Professor
JDMC, University of Delhi, India

ABSTRACT

The ageing population has a detrimental impact on the country's socioeconomic resources and increases financial strain on the working population. OADR's rapid and unabated growth is becoming a huge socioeconomic worry for India. Efforts should be taken to integrate this greying population into the workforce, not just to make them economically self-sufficient, but also to keep them physically and psychologically fit. The current poll looks into why people work or don't work after they retire from their employment, and it provides crucial new insights into the many characteristics and variables that inspire people to work past retirement age. The study's primary data is collected through a structured questionnaire from 176 participants using a Google form, then analysed and presented using statistical techniques. The study also advises policymakers on the many initiatives that need to be made to reintegrate retirees into the workforce.

KEY WORDS

Ageing population, Gender, Labour shortage, Old-age dependency ratio, Pension, Postretirement work, Retirees, Retirement, Retirement Age, workforce.

INTRODUCTION

Ageing of the population has become a global phenomenon due to a decrease in fertility and mortality rates. According to World Population Prospects 2019 (United Nations, 2019) "There were 703 million persons aged 65 years or over in the world in 2019. The number of older persons is projected to double to 1.5 billion in 2050. Globally, the share of the population aged 65 years or over increased from 6 per cent in 1990 to 9 per cent in 2019. That proportion is projected to rise further to 16 per cent by 2050, so that one in six people in the world will be aged 65 years or over." (United Nations, 2019)

CHALLENGES OF PROJECT LEADER AND TEAMWORK IN HYBRID WORK CULTURE

Dr. Madhu Gupta*

ABSTRACT

Dealing with human issues is the most challenging job of a project leader and work from remote makes this job even more complicated. Maintaining distance from each other, wearing masks, and communicating virtually is the new paradigm in which a project teams will have to work in post pandemic days. Team building and teamwork are key to the success of any project and require lot of human sensitiveness as everyone is different. From building a cohesive team, where individual members work in alignment with each other to attain project goal, while also maintaining their individuality and specialty, is going to be much tougher in emerging work environments. This paper presents, how work from remote impacts teamwork and team building activities and challenges that a project leader will have to face in hybrid work culture of work from office and work from remote. And suggests that if virtual work groups are well managed with good communication system, clear goals, proper technology, great interactive meetings, and leveraging team members' individual and collective strengths they will outperform teams with common office space.

Keywords: Hybrid Work Culture, Leadership, Team Building, Teamwork, Telecommuting, Virtual Teams.

Introduction

Teamwork is defined as the collaborative effort of a group to realize a common goal or to complete a task in most efficient way. Employee teamwork allows total workforce to break down challenging projects into smaller & manageable parts and then allows the individuals to work together to complete the project more quickly & efficiently. It also allows work allocation in an effective manner, for example, by assigning the work based on the skills & capabilities of the individual. In a nutshell, teams increase the efficiency of work by improving productivity, lowering costs, increasing profits, and in variety of other ways.

In teamwork, all individuals are working towards a common vision and a shared goal. Teammates are conscious of and believe the standard of one another's work and when one member of the team need help or requires assistance, the others can help her / him in improving with their knowledge or expertise. Teams can often regulate their own performance without the necessity for management intervention. There are in general many solutions to any work or problem. A collaborative approach can cause more rapid and in-depth innovation as many solutions can come up in a short period of time after taking a project. They will quickly become familiar with one another's strengths and correct each other's mistakes if they work together. Everyone's performance will increase as a result.

Teamwork promotes strong relationships at work. When teammates work together as an effective team, a trust is built among them and they become friend. This bond of trust and friendship is good for the organization since then these employees are more likely to communicate well with each other, support and motivate each other and work in cooperation.

PREGNANCY DISCRIMINATION IN THE WORKPLACE: AN EMPIRICAL STUDY

Dr. Madhu Gupta*

ABSTRACT

Women are now working in the workplace, collaborating with their male counterparts to ensure the success and prosperity of their organisations, industries, and countries. Pregnancy-related concerns in the workplace, on the other hand, remain a significant roadblock in a woman's career path. Through an anonymous survey, we examine at working women's experiences during pregnancy and their return to work. 67 respondents from all types of employment contributed in the study by providing responses to the questionnaire. The report suggests various solutions such as specific policies and regulations required, a shift in thinking and culture, organisational approaches to diversity and anti-discrimination protection, and much more.

Introduction

In the 19th and most of 20th century, Women have been largely employed in professions considered to be of lesser importance and status and also used to get relatively lesser pay than men for doing the same work. However, a change in labour market took place in late 20th century and as it expanded, women increasingly acquired higher academic as well as professional education, that led to betterment in their careers in terms of higher skill, status and payment. This in turn led to a higher national economic output as measured in GDP. Due to the increasing number of women entering the labour force, much research has been on the issues like gender pay gap, employment and work-life balance etc. However, there has been very little research work conducted on women's experiences during pregnancy in paid employment.

In India, the Maternity Benefit (Amendment) Act of 2017 was approved, granting Indian working moms extra maternity leave and benefits. Its goal was to encourage women to stay in the workforce after having children. Instead, according to a World Bank study, India's female labour force participation percentage has been steadily declining, from 37 percent in 2005 to 27 percent in 2013 to 20.3 percent in 2020. The global average is 47 percent, more than twice as high as India's rate of 20.3 percent. Women's participation rates are two to three times greater in China, Brazil, Indonesia, and Bangladesh than in India. Global study clearly shows that women's contribution to the economy boosts Gross Domestic Product (GDP), which is the cornerstone for a higher level of life. Only by raising women's involvement in the labour market will we be able to fulfil our goal of being a $5 trillion economy by 2024-25. Women's contribution to GDP at 18 percent, is one of the lowest in the world. By 2025, increasing women's labour force participation by 10% could add $770 billion to India's GDP.

In India, it has traditionally been the job of women to raise children and administer the household. Because few firms offer work-from-home options, flexible working hours, or creche services, many working mothers leave their careers after having a child. Employers must pay not just for maternity leave without receiving any employment from these women, but also for a substitute to complete the task. As a result, to avoid the double cost of maternity leave and benefits for the same job, businesses, particularly small businesses, do not hire many young female employees.

Another major issue concerning pregnant women is pregnancy discrimination. This involves discriminating attitude against women employees during pregnancy, childbirth or medical condition associated therewith. Pregnancy discrimination may include denial of time off or reasonable

Abstract

Consumer spending is one among the most important determinants of economic health of a country. Watching the trend on consumer spending pre and post covid-19, can generate significant information on where our economy is heading, and thus can serve as a useful tool for policy framing. This study maps the changes in Indian household expenditure before and during the pandemic and also the expected expenditure after the pandemic and concludes that the spending of households on Food and grocery, Medical and Health Care and Utilities increased and spending on Travel and tourism and Recreation and Leisure activities severely hit during Pandemic. Covid related restrictions and work from home are major reasons for this change in consumption pattern. After normalcy, it is expected that consumption expenditure on Medical and Health Care and Utilities will remain higher, while spending on Education and Recreation and Leisure activities will decrease. Primary data is collected through a structured questionnaire for the study and then analysed and presented using statistical tools.

Consumer spending is one of the biggest determinants of economic health of a country and significantly affects large part of its GDP. E-FILING-AWARENESS AND SATISFACTION EVIDENCE FROM DELHI-NCR

Varun Panwar

ABSTRACT

E-governance is a powerful tool for management of operations due to rise in technology and education. E-filing of income tax returns is one of the vital tools of e-governance that helps the government to collect taxes effectively and efficiently. The government continues to improve the e-filing website and ITR forms, to reduce the complexity and present e-filing in a simple manner. Many sections of the society still face difficulty in e-filing of income tax returns by themselves. This paper has attempted to study the impact of income and occupation on the level of awareness and satisfaction of 250 respondents in Delhi-NCR towards e-filing with the objective to know their knowledge of tax structure and the tax portal. The primary survey data is collected through snowball sampling technique, based on a structured questionnaire. One-way ANOVA test is used to result in findings indicating that income and occupation impact the level of awareness and satisfaction towards e-filing of income tax returns. Not much difference is found in tax literacy with respect to gender.

Keywords: e-Filing, Income Tax Portal, Tax Regime, ITR Forms.

Introduction

E-filing of tax returns is one of the important e-government services adopted by developed and developing countries, where taxpayers use online tax filing. In India, e-filing of income tax was introduced in September, 2004, initially on a voluntary usage basis but from assessment year 2007-2008, it became mandatory for all companies and firms that required statutory audit under section 44AB of the Income Tax Act. From 2013-14, with revolutionary changes in information technology, India launched the electronic tax filing system to control tax evasion as revenue from direct taxes was a significant share of Government's revenue. The contribution of direct taxes rose from Rs. 68,305 crores (36.31% to total taxes) in 2000-01 to Rs. 11,37,685 in 2018-19 (54.78% to total taxes)¹.

E-filing of Income Tax Return became mandatory; vide CBDT notification No. 34/2013 dated 01.05.2013 for all assessee other than an individual who:

Files ITR-1 or ITR-4

Is a super senior citizen and does not have income from regular business or profession.

In these two situations, he can file paper return but may still file electronic return if he wants. To facilitate electronic filing, a website was introduced, <http://incometaxindiaefiling.gov.in/> where tax payers could file their returns anytime during the day, with the provision of immediate confirmation from tax administration regarding receipt of returns, privacy and security, saving the draft, fast handling and storing of data.

PERSONAL INCOME TAX- IMPACT ASSESSMENT OF TAX REVENUE

Dr. Neeru Vasishth*
Varun Panwar

ABSTRACT

The tax structure of India has undergone various reforms over the years, contributing towards increased tax collection. The present paper discusses history of reforms and trend in revenue from personal taxes. It investigates the relationship of Personal Income Taxes with GDP, income wise trend of returns under different heads, trend in number of total tax payers (Personal Income Tax), the range of income under which they file tax returns (Salary and Business heads), and the heads under which they pay tax. The result shows a strong degree of positive correlation between Personal Income Taxes and GDP (significant at 0.01 level). The authors conclude there is still need for tax reforms like expansion of the tax base, inclusion of agriculture and informal sector under tax ambit, providing more concessions to lower and middle-income class assesses and having a tighter tax administrative machinery. The authors also suggest compulsory tax education programmes so that compliance cost of filing returns is reduced and post-tax income increases in the hands of tax payers.

KEYWORDS: Personal Income Taxes, Tax Reforms, Tax Collection, ITR.

Introduction

In consultation with the Ministry of Law, the Income Tax Act, 1961 came into force with effect from 1st April 1962. The tax structure of the country has undergone various changes over the years and various committees have given suggestions for improving tax rates and tax base to the benefit of the taxpayers and the Government. The tax system should be justified to ensure fair imposition of tax on all kinds of taxpayers. It should be common man friendly and impose higher liability on the richer section of people while the fact of the matter is that this section manipulates the tax concepts to their benefit. The poor section, not being fully aware of these manipulations usually is the worst sufferer and pays for his honesty. In 2017, the Government raised Rs. 26,500 crore from those who didn't file tax returns (1.7 crore), through a non-filer monitoring system, by tracking in-house information and tallying it with data on high-value transactions received from external agencies along with TDS and tax collected at source (TCS). The broad mechanism for collection and verification of financial information included data in respect of various types of high-value transactions from banks and FIs and high-value expenditure from commercial establishments in the form of Statement of Financial Transaction (SFT).¹ This substantiates the fact that those who indulge in high value transactions do not pay taxes honestly and the honest low-income earning taxpayer suffers.

Huge tax evasions can be avoided if reforms in the tax structure are fair to all. While corporate assesses can claim many concessions, exemptions and deductions, some concessions to individual tax payers can improve their compliance to the tax machinery, who otherwise look at taxes as aversive to their income portfolio, which is also a reason for tax evasion. A large number of people work in the informal sector, where transactions are done in cash and, thus, out of the tax net. India, being a huge country, the tax administrative machinery is also not completely flawless to capture every transaction in the tax system.

FINANCIAL LITERACY AND ITS DETERMINANTS: EVIDENCE FROM DELHI-NCR

Dr. Neeru Vasishth*
Dr. Shilpa Chaudhary

ABSTRACT

Purpose: The purpose of this article is to determine the level of financial literacy along with its components amongst respondents of Delhi-NCR

Design/Methodology/Approach: Data is collected through random sampling and first-hand information is received through a structured questionnaire. Multivariate regression analysis is used for finding results.

Findings: As a percentage to the maximum, the mean financial literacy, financial attitude, financial knowledge and financial behaviour scores are found to be 72, 69, 77 and 69 per cent respectively. Gender, education, age and income are found to be significant determinants of financial literacy scores.

Practical Implications: To substantiate the efforts initiated by the Government, financial literacy programmes at the level of educational institutions can improve financial literacy and behavioural change. Basic financial concepts can augment one's understanding of money multiplying and its long-term implications. An early start for each individual leads to wealth creation at personal level and contributes to the country's economic growth.

Originality/Value: A comprehensive study has helped to identify areas that require attention, such as compound interest and risk diversification. Since mean financial literacy scores are higher among men, higher income groups and higher levels of education, the policy must focus on females, lower income and age groups.

Keywords: Financial Literacy, Financial Attitude, Financial Knowledge, Financial Behaviour.

Introduction

Financial Literacy enables a person to make viable and informed choices with respect to management of money. To let the future take care of itself and spend the present income is not a wise financial strategy. Struggling with basic financial calculations and concepts and not being able to decide the financial products to invest in, is certainly not a desirable outcome. Financial literacy, not only, helps in multiplying money but also helps in planning and realizing financial needs such as retirement goals, expenses on education, buying a car or property or even going on a vacation. With a large variety of financial products available in the market, financial literacy provides the ability to compare, evaluate and choose the products wisely. In the words of OECD INFE (2011:3), financial literacy is "a combination of awareness, knowledge, skill, attitude and behaviour necessary to make sound financial decisions and ultimately achieve individual financial wellbeing". It is important for people to acquire financial literacy not only to augment their personal financial strength but also to give positive thrust to development of the economy as a whole. Effective management of money promotes resource mobilisation and contributes to economic growth. Financial planning, contingency savings and wise investments are important both at personal and economy level for inclusive growth and development of a sound financial system.

ABSTRACT

The growth of the banking sector acts as an impetus for the economic progress of any country as they are interrelated. Although in India, regulators try to monitor the banking sector in a conservative fashion, not allowing too many risks to seep in but still the sector is exposed to its own set of challenges. The concurrent need is to find solutions to such problems. Non-Performing Assets (NPAs) remain one such burning issue. The objective of this study is to understand the underlying mechanism that paves way for high-profile NPAs. Ultimately, the result represented the decline in NPAs levels from 2018 to 2019. But the percentage of wilful defaults in gross NPAs is increasing and fraud cases are furthermore, on the rise. Hence grasping the gravity of the issue, this paper examines the trends of gross NPA, wilful defaults and frauds. To unravel the fundamental problem, we have analyzed the two massive cases of Kingfisher Airlines Ltd. and Firestar International Pvt Ltd. We have discussed how these scams took place with the core focus of lapses from the bank's side. We have analyzed those key failures to recognize the bank's point of view thereon. Besides this, we tried to find out the mistakes that can again cause banks to be hit by such massive scams. Some valuable recommendations are equally drawn in the preceding section of the paper.

Keywords: NPA, Kingfisher Airlines Pvt. Ltd., Firestar International Pvt. Ltd., Wilful Default, Fraud.

Introduction

When we talk about the problems of the Indian banking sector, the existence of Non-performing Assets (NPAs) acts like the elephant in the room. It is a problem that has been haunting the economy for more than two decades. In terms of the Reserve Bank of India (RBI)'s, an asset becomes non-performing when it ceases to generate income for the bank. The increasing non-performing assets (NPAs) of banks affect the financial stability of a country, profitability of banks, quality of bank assets and pose a severe level of stress on banks' balance sheets. There are several factors like industrial recession, sluggish economic growth, ineffective recovery system of banks, complex judicial procedures, wilful defaults, frauds, etc. contributing to the increase in NPAs.

But in this paper, we are only focusing on wilful defaults and frauds. Though the gross NPA as a percentage of gross advances observed a decline from 2018 to 2019 as a result of the Government's 4Rs strategy stated by Finance minister Nirmala Sitharaman. But the contribution of wilful defaults has increased up to 60% in the last five years (2014-2019). A borrower (individual or company) is considered a wilful defaulter when it does not repay the loan or debt taken even when the borrower is perfectly able to pay off the obligations or it diverts borrowed funds for other purposes or disposes off the asset provided by him to secure the loan without the knowledge of the bank.

ABSTRACT

"All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy" - a famous saying which means that long and continuous hours of work in a monotonous environment can lead to severe harmful impacts on mental and physical health. It seems like businesses today have started to take this saying seriously, as implied from a number of employee recreational events increasingly being organized by companies. These events organized under the tag of 'Workplace Recreation' include competitions and contests, meditation sessions, sports tournaments, corporate parties/picnics and much more. The major objective being not only prevention of employee burnout but also sparking creativity and innovation among employees that comes from a relaxed mind. However, these activities come at a cost as Companies spend huge amounts of money for organizing such events. Hence companies also do a cost benefit analysis in terms of expenditure incurred and employee well-being that enables them to better handle the job stress that comes along with the modern-day work structures. The objective of this study is to examine the different aspects of recreational events but from the perspective of an employee. It intends to check whether these events are as impactful in enabling employees to cope up with the stress caused by various factors. The analysis which has been carried out using graphical representation and statistical techniques recognizes the need for activities which help the employees to escape monotony and provides support to the positive impact of recreational programs currently happening at workplaces. Employees seem to be inclined towards the opinion that recreational programs are positively affecting their work by helping them bond with their colleagues, enabling greater interaction and sparking creativity, eventually leading them to cope with stress caused due to work-related and personal factors.

Introduction

With the advent of the 21st century, one major change that has taken Multi-national Companies (MNCs) by storm is the stress that they place upon human resources in their organizations. Be it organizational behavior, executive compensation, the emergence of the gig economy and hybrid work structures - different aspects of human resource management are getting evolved into separate domains. The traditional communication and motivation models practiced in organizations are being questioned and updated continuously. They hold utmost significance in the concurrent world looking at modern-day work structures which are loaded with stress amplified by external special circumstances such as a pandemic. One way to manage job-induced stress is to break the monotonous work life by adding some recreation to it termed as 'Workplace Recreation'. These recreational activities comprise of a wide range of activities for the betterment of the mental and physical health of employees and also provide entertainment to them which helps them to cope with the job stress. These programs include several events ranging from celebration of festivals/birthdays to organization of contests or sports tournaments. Such events gain more importance in the wake of pandemic where there has been a gigantic paradigm shift in work structures that has hugely impacted the physical and mental well-being of employees.

COVID-19- IMPACT ON LEARNING PROCESS

Dr. Manisha Sinha*,
Dr. Madhu Gupta

ABSTRACT

Remote and online learning went mainstream during Covid-19 as most of the universities and schools were closed. Most teachers and students were not prepared for this abrupt change and were not familiar with the use of ICT tools for remote teaching learning. The non-availability of suitable power and telecom infrastructure, availability of universal tools for teaching and evaluation were great challenges for both teachers and students alike. The present study explores the perceptions of, and challenges faced by, the students of classes XI and XII in school and those in the University, residing in Delhi NCR. A total of 274 respondents participated in the study by answering a structured questionnaire. Percentage method, chi-square test, bar graphs and pie charts have been used to analyse and present the data. The study concludes that students' preference for online learning is independent of income level, gender, level of numerical/lab work in subject studied and their educational level. The remote teaching learning is expected to stay in the future, the government as well as the educational institutions should focus on improving infrastructure and training of the teachers and the students alike.

Keywords: Covid-19, Learners, Technology, Evaluation, Tools, Stress.

Introduction

The Covid-19 pandemic has created an unprecedented challenge in delivery of education as it resulted in large scale closure of schools. Remote teaching and learning went mainstream and, in many cases, the only way to impart education during the Covid-19 crisis.

The access to remote education during Covid-19 has been impacted by socio-economic factors like gender, family income, rural or urban area and the digital divide. Remote Learning has been further impacted due to lack of computers skills and unavailability of tools adding to the inequality in access to education.

Challenges remain in the mechanism to deliver a holistic learning to all sections of the society with emphasis on experimental and hand-on learning, research, innovation and critical thinking. These include teacher training, access of ICT devices, communication infrastructure, availability of tools for teaching, evaluation and feedback.

There have been studies to evaluate the student challenges and perception of e-learning but not many studies evaluate the same during Covid-19. Further the studies relate mainly to University students and there is a lack of sufficient research covering school students. The present study explores the perceptions of, and challenges faced by, the students of classes XI and XII in school and those in the University, as they are expected to be familiar with the ICT tools and platforms.

Objectives of the Study

- To find out the most preferred platforms used in online teaching by schools and colleges during COVID-19 pandemic.
- To find out which one is the most used device for online learning among students.

CHALLENGES IN PEDAGOGY DURING COVID -19

Dr. Manisha Sinha^{}

ABSTRACT

The sudden shift to online teaching as a result of the covid-19 pandemic has placed an enormous burden on teachers to quickly adapt to new pedagogical methods. They have been forced to learn and master various tools in order to deliver online classes, evaluate assignments, and track students' progress. The current study investigates the perceptions and challenges of teachers of classes XI and XII in school and those in university, who are expected to be familiar with ICT tools and platforms. The study employs both primary and secondary sources of information, and a total of 276 respondents took part in the survey by filling the questionnaire and providing us with the data needed. The percentage method, chi-square test, bar graphs and pie charts have been used to analyse and present the data. It is concluded that, following the pandemic, most teachers support blended teaching and have performed admirably, but have also faced significant stress and technological challenges in meeting the expectations of remote teaching. Software and tools used to deliver online education must be standardised.

Introduction

During the Covid-19 crisis, remote teaching and learning went mainstream and, in many cases, the only way to impart education. The Covid-19 pandemic has created an unprecedented challenge in delivery of education. It resulted in large scale closure of schools, colleges and universities. While the switch to Remote Teaching-Learning during Covid-19 has been abrupt and nearly all stakeholders were not prepared to handle the changes, remote teaching learning is expected to increase in the future. The abrupt switch over to online teaching has placed an enormous responsibility on teachers to quickly adapt to the new methods of pedagogy. They have been forced to learn and master different tools to deliver online classes, evaluate assignments and review the progress of students. In some cases, these tools were structured and in many cases the tools have been improvised by the teaching community itself. Additionally, the teaching community has faced challenges in taking classes from home due to lack of reliable network and power infrastructure, assigned space at home and interruptions from the home environment.

One of the barriers to increased use of ICT is the lack of proper training for both schools and university teachers. This is often overlooked since it has a significantly higher cost. Lack of training, limitations of available technology at home, technical challenges and lack of proper equipment and tools make instructors feel uncomfortable to teach remotely. Many teachers consider teaching as their main role and view the ICT tools used for remote teaching as an addition to their daily tasks. Internal barriers that include fear of technology, computer anxiety, and badly defined roles are also faced by the Teachers.

Covid 19- Work Life Balance For Women Working From Home

ABSTRACT

Work-life balance, defined as "a state of equilibrium in which the demands of both a person's job and personal life are equal" (Lockwood, 2003) has been a global challenge for decades.

While economic empowerment of women has resulted in greater numbers joining the workforce, they are still disproportionately responsible for the unpaid household responsibilities and caregivers for the family all across the globe. This imbalance has been accentuated by the work from home scenario thrust upon humanity by the ongoing Covid 2019 pandemic. Women working from home had to shoulder increasing responsibility at home while fulfilling responsibilities at work. It became a challenge for them to balance their work and life.

Many studies have examined the impact of work-life balance due to remote work, forced by the ongoing pandemic, but there have been very few studies which have researched on the life of working women in India in terms of their level of work and family stress, job satisfaction etc. The present study aims to address this gap.

The study is based on the primary data collected through online surveys with the help of structured questionnaires from a sample of about 173 women who have been working from home in Delhi NCR during the ongoing pandemic period. This data is presented through charts and tables and is analysed using statistical tools like correlation and regression.

ABSTRACT

India and the world saw its biggest disruption in the financial economy since the financial crisis of 2008 because of Covid 19. The Indian stock exchange is a very important component of the Indian financial system. The purpose of the paper is to study the behaviour of retail investors in India post covid 19. The paper tries to examine the changes and analyze the reasons for this change.

INTRODUCTION

The impact of COVID-19 has been unprecedented across the World. It has affected every country to various degrees. In this interconnected world, India is no exception. Every sector in India has been impacted, whether financial, healthcare, energy, auto, real estate tourism, dining, leisure & entertainment.

The global economy has experienced the biggest disruption since the 2008 Financial Crisis. The impact on Indian GDP was immense. From a 4% growth in FY 19 to 8% contraction in FY 20. With lockdowns being imposed for safety and medical infrastructure reasons during the first wave, the impact was felt on every major sector in India. As consumption was on decline, the Indian government increased public spending and RBI reduced interest rates to try to bolster the economy.

TIME-USE AND STRESS IN MARRIED WORKING WOMEN

Dr. Manisha Sinha*

ABSTRACT

As more and more women join the work force, they continue to be responsible for care giving work at home leading to a work-family conflict. Married working women have the additional responsibilities of homecare, childcare and elderly care, in addition to their work. Consequently, their time use depicts a greater number of unpaid hours in these roles, limiting their time for relaxation, social interaction and leisure. This directly leads to higher stress levels. Primary data is collected using a structured questionnaire and the responses collected online. Additional information is collected through various secondary sources. The study analyses the stress levels at home of 134 married working women residing in Delhi NCR. The data thus collected is presented through tables and graphs and is analyzed using regression analysis. The stress levels are analyzed taking into consideration, various factors like family structure, job level, time use per day and support system at work and home. The study concludes that availability of support systems at home and availability of time for self-relaxation and leisure are significant factors in reducing stress at home. These factors overcome the additional responsibilities of care giving in a multi-generational family home.

Keywords: Married Working Women, Stress, Care Giving, Time-Use.

Introduction

Women take the disproportionate responsibility for the unpaid household and caregiver work, leading to work-life conflicts and increasing stress levels. Consequently, women are less likely to be employed in the labour force. The inequality also leads to women preferring some jobs in which they can meet the demands of care giving including part time jobs. The need to manage home and care giving roles also leads to pay inequality.

At work, women face lack of leaves for childcare and elderly care. Most of the workplaces are not conducive to childcare and lack support mechanisms like creches and day care. Long working and irregular hours and non-flexible schedules take a toll on the health and general well-being of the working woman and work-family conflict. The responsibility for childcare and elderly care in many cases places a large economic burden on the family with the working women taking the option of leaving the job.

A 2015 survey of more than 9,500 women by Thompson Reuters and Rockefeller foundation in G20 countries¹ found out the work-life balance has the highest priority for women. In Russia, South Korea, China, Japan, and India, 44% of the women mentioned that managing work and home commitments is the tightest challenge they face. It was also found that worst workplace inequalities are faced by the women in India and Turkey.

INVESTMENT STRATEGY BASED ON CORRELATION IN GLOBAL STOCK EXCHANGES

Dr. Manisha Sinha*

ABSTRACT

Predicting performance of stock markets has been a quest for all investors. An investor relies on his understanding of Global cues and expert advice and would plan the investment strategy. This requires an intense effort to watch the market trends and factors influencing the markets carefully and be proactive in trading as per the cues. Many predictive models have been used to assess the market using mathematical tools like Machine Learning and other techniques which are complex for a normal person to grasp. With the globalisation of the economy, the stock markets have become closely correlated. This paper examines if the correlation of the stock markets can be used to predict the stock prices and a no-effort trading policy that performs auto-trades, without any intervention by the trader, can be derived. The study uses stock indices data for 2020 to predict behaviour of BSE SENSEX and selected stocks in 2021. Using the correlation, it derives a trading strategy to beat the market in 2021 to generate value that is higher than the rise in stock prices over 2021. Lagged indices are used to take advantage of different operating hours of the stock markets. Correlation models, polynomial relationships and mathematical models are used to carry out the analysis.

Keywords: Investment Strategy, Global Cues, Globalisation, Correlation, Trading Strategy.

Introduction

The stock markets are dependent on many factors for their performance. Political and Global events, financial policies, growth of economy, performance of leading companies or sectors of economy, flow of funds from large investors, exchange rate fluctuations, natural calamities, are some of the factors that would determine how the stock market would perform on a particular day. A retail investor has very low visibility into the events and is generally at a loss to predict the movement of the stock market. Hence the trading strategy most investors employ is to listen to expert advice and monitor the movement of stocks continuously. Nowadays, many software tools and apps make this job simpler by sending alerts triggered by user set thresholds.

However, the investors are always looking for a no-effort investment tool that can predict the movement of the stocks and give them returns that are better than the market. In this paper we attempt to use correlation between leading Global stock exchanges to develop a mathematical model that could be used for investing in Bombay stock exchange.

Literature Review

(Junior et al., 2015) examine 83 stock market indices using correlation. The lagged values of stock market indices has been also considered for the analysis. They report that information flow between stock exchanges lagged by day is similar to same day correlation with them

(Nobi et al., 2014) examine relationships between Korean indices and Global indices over 2000-2012 time period and conclude that the relationships have become more correlated over time.

(Kumar Tiwari et al., 2013) explore the correlation between nine major Asian stock markets between 2005 and 2012 and conclude that the stock markets are highly integrated.

(Ni & Xu, 2021) attempt to predict the correlation between the global stock markets using Deep Learning method and show that their model provides better results than existing methodologies.

Interdependence Between Indian and Global

ABSTRACT

The Indian economy has seen swung from the balance of payment crises in 1991 to being the fastest growing economy in world, mainly due to the measures taken to open up and liberalise the economy. The liberalisation of economy has resulted in greater flow of capital to Indian stock markets and hence the impact of global events on Indian markets has become more pronounced. The foreign trade has also increased with the liberalisation of the economy.

This study analyses the correlation between Indian and some selected Global stock indices from 1987 and 2021 and concludes that the stock index correlation has markedly improved after liberalisation. Further it also analyses the flow of foreign capital into Indian stock markets and the changes in foreign trade. The study concludes that while the flow of foreign capital is aligned with the co-dependence of Indian and foreign markets, the changes in foreign trade do not exhibit this correlation. Hence the stock market correlation and flow of foreign capital could be considered as one of the indicators of the liberalisation of the economy.

KEYWORDS: Indian Stock Market, Correlation, Foreign trade, FII inflows, liberalisation.

Introduction

India had a balance of payment crises in 1991 when the foreign exchange reserves could meet only three weeks of the imports. Low ratings from Moody's did not allow the government to seek short term loans which ultimately resulted in the country using its gold reserves to tide over the crises. The balance of payment crises led to reforms resulting in liberalisation of the Indian economy.

Before liberalisation the Indian Rupee was non-convertible, and the key element of the national economic policy was import substitution. This made foreign trade extremely difficult. Foreign investment in Indian stock markets was negligible and thus the stock markets were largely insulated from the global trends.

The reforms undertaken in 1991 included abolishing the industrial licenses required in all except 18 industries, reducing licenses requirement for imports, removing limits on accumulation of capital and abolishing restrictions on foreign investments. This led to opening up of the Indian economy to the world. The foreign direct investment in India which was USD 97 million in 1991 rose to a staggering $82 billion in 2021, making India the fifth largest recipient of FDI in the world.

India-Saudi Arabia Tourism Diplomacy

By Dr. Vijay Kumar , Neelu Verma - May 26, 2022

Tourism in Saudi Arabia has aroused splendid hobby within the closing decade. Investments in catering and pipeline shipping are considerable. India and Saudi Arabia revel in cordial and friendly members of the family reflecting the centuries-old economic and socio-cultural ties. The status quo of diplomatic relations in 1947 turned into followed with the aid of excessive-degree visits from both aspects. King Saud visited India in 1955 and the Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru visited the dominion in 1956. In the 2006 visit of King Abdullah to India, Saudi Arabia and India signed the "Delhi Declaration" supplying a sparkling momentum to the bilateral relationship. The reciprocal visit by way of Prime Minister Dr. Manmohan Singh to Saudi Arabia in 2010 raised the level of bilateral engagement to "Strategic Partnership" and the "Riyadh Assertion" signed all through the visit captured the spirit of improved cooperation in political, economic, security and defence geographical regions.

In February 2014, in the course of the visit of His Royal Highness Crown Prince Salman Bin Abdulaziz Al-Saud, Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Defence of the kingdom of Saudi Arabia to India, a Joint assertion became issued. In November 2015, at the sidelines of the G20 meeting in Antalya, Turkey, Prime Minister Mr. Narendra Modi met with the Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques, King Salman Bin Abdulaziz Al Saud, and mentioned regions of the bilateral hobby.

India has participated as 'visitor of honour' within the thirty-second version of the distinguished Saudi country-wide competition of historical past and lifestyle – Janadriyah from February 7 – 28, 2018. The then External Affairs Minister Smt. Sushma Swaraj mutually inaugurated the India Pavilion along with His Majesty King Salman.

Abstract

The present study aims to examine the Sustainability (ESG) reporting practices and the impact of some corporate characteristics (age, size, profitability, leverage, and international presence) on the extent of sustainability disclosure of listed banks in India. The sample consisted of all ten banks listed on S&P BSE Bankex representing a large market share of the Indian banking sector. The Sustainability/CSR/Business responsibility reports of the sample companies for the FY 2019-20 were examined through the content analysis method using a self-developed Sustainability Reporting Disclosure Index (SRDI) based on the review of literature and standards on sustainability disclosure. The multiple regression technique is used to identify significant corporate attributes affecting Sustainability Reporting (SR). The findings indicate that dimensions like environment, human rights and labour practices are the least reported by selected banks. The regression results show that there is a positive and significant impact of size and leverage on the level of sustainability disclosure whereas age, profitability, and international presence are found to be insignificant. Corporate attributes like size, leverage and international presence are found to be positively and significantly associated with sustainability reporting among the selected banks. However, age and profitability are found to have a negative relationship. The empirical studies on the extent of ESG disclosure and its relationship with firm characteristics especially in the banking sector of developing countries like India are scarce, so this study is an attempt to fill this gap.

1. Introduction and Background of the Study

Due to increasing industrialisation as a result of economic development, several risks in the form of climate change, environmental degradation and depletion of natural resources have been posed and made sustainable development a global concern. Companies can contribute to sustainable development by embracing the triple bottom line approach to CSR which includes environmental, social and economic performance and catering to all stakeholders which are important in the firm's achievement of sustainable development¹. It has become imperative for business organisations to embed sustainability into their core business strategy by considering social and environmental issues apart from economic performance².

In a global survey by KPMG (2020)³ in 52 countries, it has been found that sustainability or ESG reporting is increasingly recognized as a critical component of corporate reporting by financial stakeholders worldwide. So there has been an increasing demand by various

Abstract

The repeal of the Three Farm Laws by the Union Government of India is the first consequential setback to the neoliberal project in India after 2014. The struggle was largely carried out by peasants in alliance with workers. The Left in India played a decisive role in crafting this setback to the neoliberal project by working towards the building of a tendential working alliance between peasants and workers. The popular resistance that has been engendered by the upsurge of peasants and workers will need to nurture this alliance, renew its focus on combatting gender and caste oppression, and engage in an authentic effort to build solidarity among the various constituents of the democratic movement in India.

Abstract

In the state of Punjab, the heart of the green revolution in India, a large fraction of agricultural labour is expended by migrant workers. The unplanned lockdown imposed by the Indian government affected paddy transplantation, a labour-intensive activity in Punjab primarily due to inter-state restrictions on movement. Drawing on a primary survey in a village from the Malwa region of Punjab, the paper examines the changes in agrarian relations in rural Punjab due to the Covid-19 pandemic by critically analysing the dynamics of capital labour relations. The restriction on labour movement and unilateral imposition of transplantation wage rates by a few Panchayats in Punjab (dominated by capitalist landlords and rich peasants) has intensified class conflict in the state. The Punjab government's policies, which are driven by the capitalist landlords and rich peasants, have played a significant role in the increased exploitation of workers. The paper concludes with a brief evaluation of the changes induced by Covid-19 in the agrarian political economy of Punjab.

In recent years, food has been the subject of active discussion and research across many disciplines in the humanities and social sciences. Food 'influences virtually every aspect of human life' (Pilcher 2012: xix), and topics concerning it can and should be studied from multiple perspectives. Many people find it easy to associate research on dietary and culinary practices with their daily life. Studies on food therefore attract a wide range of readers both in and outside academia.

When one of the editors of this special issue, along with other scholars in Japan, began a five-year research project in 2011 entitled 'Multidisciplinary Studies on Food and Identity in Modern India', one of the questions that all the members were interested in was how to incorporate stories of food in the courses they had been teaching in Japanese universities. Among the participants were historians, sociologists, anthropologists, and scholars of literature. Based on their experiences, they knew how effective the stories of food could be for explaining important aspects of South Asian society and history to the students in an accessible manner. Yet, they often wondered how they could convey at the same time the difficulties, complexities, ambiguities, fluidity, and diversity that one should bear in mind when discussing the relationships between food and communities, food and nations, and food and identities.¹ Conscious of this dilemma, once the project started, each member began to closely examine food-related debates in different regions in colonial and postcolonial India, based on archival research and fieldwork. In particular, they tried to understand the ways in which multiple ideas of 'our'/'their' food were articulated in different contexts by

Abstract

The article focuses on Dārā Shukoh's Majma'-ul-Bahrain (written, 1654–55), which is basically a comparative and systematic study of modes of Hindu thought and belief from the view point of Islamic Sufism. There is thus the need to establish the degree of authenticity achieved in Dārā Shukoh's exploration of the different Hindu philosophical and religious beliefs, especially keeping in view his own preference for pantheistic aspects. This naturally involves also a partial re-exploration of the field in which Dārā Shukoh had sought what he deemed to be the ultimate truth.

Abstract

The Great Depression was a moment of rupture and dispossession in the history of the plantation economy and colonial Indian migration in the Bay of Bengal. The developments of this period provide important insights into the shifting patterns of Indian migration, labor regimes, (im)migrant-native relations, and the rise of xenophobic politics in the region. Given the historical importance of migration and the persistence of xenophobia in Burma, a study of migrant labor within the emerging nationalist politics of the interwar period is crucial. This period witnessed provocative but well-established questions concerning Indian migration: whether Indian migrants were supplementary or surplus, whether they were filling a void or

Title: Buddhism in India and Society

Department: History

Research Paper

Dr. Manisha Sharma

Buddhism in India and Society

Buddhism a religion and a belief which had its origin in India but influenced the minds of whole world were founded by Gautama Buddha as he is popularly known. "Gautama Buddha lived and taught mostly in the north eastern part of ancient India sometime between the 6th and 4th centuries BCE".¹ There are different view regarding the birth and death of Buddhism. Some Scholar believes that "Buddha was born around 563 BCE and died around 483 BCE".² Acc to P.V. Bapat, "In the year 623 B.C. queen Mahamaya while travelling from kapilvastu to Devadaha to her parent's home gave birth to Siddhartha in the Lumbini grow."³

Although Buddhism was a religions movement but Buddhism had a very close connection with the society. The society during this time was clearly stratified due to the expanding economy the tribal groups were getting assimilated in the society. The growing phase of urbanization and economy created a lack of space for the tribal communities who ultimately got assimilated into the social order. They undertook professions like basket weaving and hunting. They specialized in their economic occupation and got merged in the social order.

"The process of absorbing tribals at the lower level the hierarchy was made possible because Hindu society gave them a minimum economic security which could not be attained under the tribal system particularly after the tribes had been affected by encroachment on the fertile portions of their land."⁴

THE HIGH & LOW ORDERS OF THE SOCIETY:

Due to the increasing large holdings of land and their ownership by private individuals, a conduction of hired labour was created to make them work on these large holdings. The best example to know about the size of the holdings is "Brathmana Kasibharadvaja of the village of Ekanata is described a using 500 ploughs."⁵

The term dasa – kammakara and porisas are mentioned in the suitta nipata referring to those who worked in as laboures within and outside the households. We also get reference to the word 'dalidda' referring to a very poor person. Those who did not have even sufficient to eat and drink were the very poor sections of the society.

On the other hand there were very rich people in the society who lived a luxurious life with surplus for their recreation and enjoyment. "In contast, there were people who lived comfortably or even luxuriously, possessing gold, silver grain, a carriage, and a beautiful house, with servants to work for them"⁶

The differentiation in distribution of health created conditions of tension in the society. We get reference to an incident in the Majjahima Nikaya' in which the dasi's face was physically assaulted by her mistress for dasi kali's disobedient behaviour.

WOMEN AS REFLECTED IN 'SAMANTAPASADIKAI'

ABSTRACT: The present paper brings out the status of women as reflected in the commentary on Vinaypitak known as Samantapasadika. The commentary refers to the various roles played by the women in the society,. The text also refers to the various kinds of dresses and ornamentation of women. Women education has also been discussed in the paper.

KEYWORDS: Samantapasadika, Rakhita, "Stri-dhana, vaisyagochro ,Rupapjvika, kandabhushan, karnabhushan, karabhushan, katiabhushanpadabhushan

'Samantapasadika' is a commentary on the 'Vinayapitak' It was written by Buddhaghosa at the request of Buddh Sri. It was written in Pali language. Pali was also the language of the Buddhist canonical literature. In 'Samantapasadika' 'samanta' means four directions and pasadika' means to cool down. It was compiled in Sri Lanka by Buddhaghosa in the 5th Century C.E. In writing this commentary Buddhaghosa consulted the ancient commentaries Mahaparchariya and Kurndi. For a better understanding of the Tripitaka, 'Atthakatha's were written. In 'Samantapasadika', the author provides a sufficient insight into socio-economic political, philosophical and religious history of India. The Sinhalese commentaries were translated into Pali by Buddhaghosa. It was after the introduction of the commentarial literature that the monks and the laities could understand the words of the Buddha. The interpretation of difficult words in the 'Vinayapitak' and its basic understanding could be made possible due to this commentary. Besides the basic understanding of the text the commentary also deals with instances and stories from the life of Buddha. Before the introduction of the commentarial literature, Buddhism had lost its basic language i.e. Pali. The Buddhist texts began to be written by some of the Buddhist sects in Sanskrit. Buddha emphasized more on making the use of Pali as a method of instruction because Pali was the language of the common people, however due to the use of Sanskrit in the later periods by various Buddhist sects the people found it difficult to understand them. From the Samantapasadikawe can get a glimpse of the society. The condition of women and her status in the society has also been described in parts in the text.

STATUS OF WOMEN:

From the text we come to know that sons were preferred over daughters in the society. The birth of a son was rejoiced. The birth of a female was not looked down upon however the birth of sons was preferred. Women were mostly engaged in the society household works. In the society they were considered to be subordinate to men. They had to obey the order of their husband and did not have any right to take decisions. From the parajik we get reference to nine types of women.

दिव्या, थेरिगाथा और स्त्री-मुक्ति का प्रश्न
- डॉ. रजनीबाला अनुरागी

प्रस्तावना
यशपाल एक प्रगतिशील कथाकार के तौर पर हिन्दी साहित्य में जाने जाते हैं। एक तरफ़ उनका संबंध स्वतंत्रता संग्राम में शामिल क्रांतिकारियों और उनके संगठन से था तो दूसरी तरफ़ स्वातंत्र्योत्तर भारत में वे और अभिव्यक्ति आदि पर काफी गहरे पड़ा। यशपाल का समूचा लेखन और खास तौर पर उनकी कहानियाँ इस बात को दर्शाती हैं कि स्वतंत्रता प्राप्ति से पहले और बाद में हमारे और स्थापित होते हुए मध्यवर्ग के कटु यथार्थ, दिखावे और अंतरविरोधों को बेहद निर्ममता और महीनता के साथ उभारा है। यशपाल हिन्दी के पहले लेखक हैं जिन्होंने भारत विभाजन की पूर्व स्थितियों और विभाजन के समय और बाद में हुई जासदी की बहुत ही गहन और विशद अभिव्यक्ति अपने उपन्यास 'झूठा सच' में किया है।

यशपाल का लेखन निरसंदेह बहुत महत्वपूर्ण लेखन है। उनकी प्रगतिशील लेखन दृष्टि जीवन के उन इलाकों में भी पहुँचती है जो आम तौर पर अछूते रह जाते हैं। विषय को टूट कर और उसको अभिव्यक्त करने की उनकी शैली सरल दिखाई देते हुए भी काफी गंभीर होती है। लेकिन स्वातंत्र्योत्तर भारत में हमारे विभिन्न विमर्शों के जरिये जब यशपाल सरीखे साहित्यकारों के लेखन को पढ़ा और समझा जाने लगा तो उनके लेखन के अंतराल और अंतरविरोध उजागर होने लगे। 'दिव्या' यशपाल का एक बहुप्रसिद्ध उपन्यास है और भारत के कई विश्वविद्यालयों में पढ़ाया जाता है। इस उपन्यास की कथावस्तु और विन्यास में कई तरह के समस्याग्रस्त इलाके हैं जिनमें से एक है इसका स्त्रीवादी पाठ और उसके अन्तरविरोध। लेखक ने इस उपन्यास में कुछ ऐतिहासिक स्रोतों और तथ्यों का प्रयोग करते हुए भी इस उपन्यास की कथावस्तु को 'ऐतिहासिकता कल्पना' कहा है। इस शोधलेख का उद्देश्य इसी अन्तरविरोधों की जाँच-पड़ताल करना और वस्तुनिष्ठ सच्चाई को सामने लाना है।

बीज शब्द : दिव्या, थेरिगाथा, अंतरविरोध, विमर्श, ऐतिहासिक, बौद्धकालीन, भिमुणी, भिमुणी संघ, प्रब्रज्या, धम्मदीक्षा, मुक्ति, निर्वाण, 'दिव्या' उपन्यास उसकी नायिका दिव्या को केन्द्र में रखकर लिखा गया है। दिव्या का कथा विन्यास बौद्धकालीन समय और समाज की पृष्ठभूमि पर रचा गया है। यानी इस उपन्यास की पृष्ठभूमि में बुद्ध मौजूद नहीं हैं लेकिन उनका प्रभाव मौजूद है। दिव्या उपन्यास का कथानक दिव्या की गाथा से शुरू होकर उसी की करुणगाथा पर समाप्त होता है। राजेश कुमार अपनी किताब 'दिगम्बर-हिन्दी उपन्यास बदलते पाठ' में लिखते हैं- "उपन्यास का केन्द्रीय पात्र दिव्या प्रतिष्ठित ब्राह्मण कुल की कन्या है। उसे समाज में कला की प्रतिगुर्ति होने का सम्मान प्राप्त है। जब तक वह भिनुसत्तात्मक और ब्राह्मणवादी आचारसंहिता का अनुपालन करती है, तब तक सुविधासंपन्न और प्रतिष्ठित जीवन जीती है। जब वह आचार संहिताओं से अनुमति लिए बिना आत्म निर्णय लेती है तो उसका जीवन उसी के लिए एक कलंक बन जाता है। वह सुविधा संपन्न और प्रतिष्ठित जीवन के साथ साथ अपनी पहचान भी खो देती है...उसे एक दासी, नर्तकी और देश का जीवन जीना पड़ता है।"

स्त्री मुक्ति का प्रश्न और बौद्ध धर्म के अन्तरविरोध : मद्र गणराज्य की सागल नगरी में 'मधुपर्ण' उत्सव के अवसर पर आयोजित नृत्य समारोह में सरस्वती-पुत्री का सम्मान प्राप्त करने वाली धर्मस्थ महापंडित देव शर्मा की प्रपौत्री कुमारी दिव्या दासकुलोत्पन्न महाश्रेष्ठि प्रेक्ष के पुत्र पृथुसेन से सहानुभूति रखती है। दिव्या उसके साथ हुए अन्याय की

दलित आलोचना की नई दिशाएं और संभावनाएं

रजनी बाला अनुरागी

एसोसिएट प्रोफेसर, जानकी देवी मेमोरियल कॉलेज, दिल्ली विश्वविद्यालय, नई दिल्ली

सारांश

हिन्दी में अपने उदय से लेकर आज भी दलित साहित्य लगातार साहित्य की तमाम विधाओं में गहन और मजबूत रचनात्मक हस्तक्षेप कर रहा है। दलित साहित्य वैचारिकी और आलोचना दृष्टि न सिर्फ दलित साहित्य के तमाम व्यापक सरोकारों, अन्तरविरोधों और अन्तरालों का मूल्यांकन करके सामने ला रहा है बल्कि गैर दलितों के सहानुभूतिपरक साहित्य के पुनर्मूल्यांकन के जरिये उसे एक नया दृष्टिकोण देने की कोशिश भी बहुत सकारात्मक ढंग से कर रहा है। हिन्दी में दलित साहित्य और आलोचना ने ब्राह्मणवादी व्यवस्था और जातिवाद पर आधारित जाति व्यवस्था को लगातार चुनौतियां दी हैं। साहित्य के तमाम महिमामंडित आख्यानों पर पुनर्विचार और नए शोध के जरिये नई दृष्टि तलाशने के लिए प्रेरित किया है। जिससे दलित आलोचना की नई दिशाएं और संभावनाएं खुलती हैं। दलित साहित्य और आलोचना ने लगातार होने वाली उन बहसों को जन्म दिया है जिनसे साहित्य को अपने पुराने प्रतिमानों पर विचार करने की आवश्यकता पड़ी है। इन सब पर दलित और गैर दलित विचारकों की आलोचना दृष्टि वाद-प्रतिवाद के रूप में सामने आई है और भविष्य के संवाद की जमीन तैयार की है। दलित साहित्य एक आंदोलन है जो अपनी समग्रता में व्यापक मानववादी मुक्तिकामी संघर्ष और स्वप्न का साहित्यिक रूप है जिसका उद्देश्य जातिविहीन, वर्गविहीन और लैंगिक व अन्य सभी प्रकार के भेदभावों से रहित प्रबुद्ध समाज और संस्कृति का निर्माण है जिसके मूल में ब्राह्मणवादी, पूंजीवादी और साम्राज्यवादी साहित्यिक सांस्कृतिक सरोकारों और रूढ़ानों के प्रति एक सचेष्ट और प्रखर विरोध है। इस मायने में यह व्यापक मानवीय और साहित्यिक सरोकारों का वैश्विक आंदोलन है।

बीज शब्द: साहित्य, दलित आंदोलन, दलित साहित्य, दलित आलोचना, आलोचना दृष्टि, सामाजिक सरोकार, नये प्रतिमान।

प्रस्तावना

दलित साहित्य ने पिछली सदी के सातवें दशक में मराठी दलित साहित्य के माध्यम से अपनी उपस्थिति दर्ज की। धीरे धीरे यह आंदोलन पूरे भारत में फैल गया। दलित साहित्य और दलित आंदोलन परस्पर एक दूसरे के पूरक हैं। दलित साहित्य से दलित आंदोलन को दिशा मिली और आंदोलन के रूप में परिणत होकर इसने अपनी सामाजिक जिम्मेदारी तो बखूबी निभाई ही इसके साथ साथ इस साहित्य ने परंपरागत साहित्यिक प्रतिमानों, सृजनात्मक स्वरूपों और कलात्मकता के बरकस दलित जीवन की अनुभूतियों और तदनु रूप सृजनात्मक

अभिव्यक्तियों के माध्यम से दलित वैचारिकी और कलात्मकता के नए प्रतिमानों को स्थापित कर साहित्य की जड़ता को तोड़ा।

आंदोलन से उपजे साहित्य के निश्चित तौर पर कुछ मुद्दे होते हैं जिनके विस्तार के साथ साथ जनता की तमाम चिंतवृत्तियां समाहित होती जाती हैं। इस संदर्भ में डॉ. सी. बी. भारती कहते हैं... "सामाजिक परिवर्तन की भावना का निरंतर विकास, परंपरागत साहित्यिक सामाजिक मानदंडों, सिंधकों को तोड़ने, सामाजिक अन्याय से मुक्ति, भाग्यवादी सोच को नकारने व विवेक और तर्क को महत्ता

हिन्दी दलित स्त्री कविता : नई चेतना, नए स्वर

सारांश

हिन्दी में दलित स्त्री कविता का आगमन एक ऐसे बिन्दु पर होता है जहाँ तक आते आते स्त्री कविता और दलित कविता स्थापित हो चुकी थे और अपनी पहचान बना चुके थे। दलित कविता के इसी बिन्दु से हिन्दी कविता में दलित स्त्री कविता की शुरुआत होती है। दलित स्त्री कविता संवेदना, अन्तर्वस्तु, शिल्प और विचार के स्तर पर नए आयामों को सामने लाती है। दलित स्त्री कविता न सिर्फ हिन्दी की स्त्री कविता के अन्तर्विरोधों को उजागर करती है बल्कि दलित कविता में स्त्री पक्ष की पितृसत्तावादी समझ के संकीर्णता के पैरों को भी खोलती है। दलित स्त्री कविता समकालीन स्त्री कविता और दलित कविता के सीमित दायरे को तोड़ कर न सिर्फ कविता के फलक को व्यापकता की ओर ले जाती है बल्कि उन पहलुओं को भी पूरी कलात्मकता और गहराई से सामने लाती है जो यहाँ छूटते रहे हैं। दलित स्त्री कविता उन सभी सवालियों को उठाती है जिनकी अब तक अनदेखी हुई या जिनको बहुत सीमित समझ के साथ देखा गया। इन सभी सवालियों को इस शोधालेख में उठाया गया है और उनको समझने की कोशिश की गई है। साथ ही इन अनुत्तरित सवालियों के जवाब दलित स्त्री कविता के हवाले से खोजने की कोशिश भी इस शोधालेख में की गई है।

बीज-शब्द: दलित, दलित विमर्श, स्त्री कविता, दलित कविता, दलित स्त्री, दलित स्त्री कविता, पितृसत्ता, सरोकार, संघर्ष।

प्रस्तावना

अस्सी के दशक की तमाम प्रमुख कही जाने वाली स्थापित धाराएं धूमिल होने लगीं। साहित्य के मठाधीशों ने पुरजोर कोशिश की कि उनके मठ और गढ़ भग्न हों किन्तु हाशिए के लोगों के बढ़ते कदमों को रोक न सके। उन्हें हतोत्साहित और कमजोर करने के लिए तमाम तरह के प्रयास किए गए। कभी एकांगी भाव और विषयवस्तु के नाम पर तो कभी अनगढ़ भाषा और कमजोर शिल्प विधान के नाम पर। लेकिन जब बंचित, शोषित, उत्पीड़ित वर्ग ने अपने हिस्से की जमीन पर कब्जा शुरू किया तो सर्वसत्तावादी शक्तियों के पेच छीले होने लगे। तमाम तरह की पुरोहिती आलोचना की चुनौतियों का सामना करते हुए स्त्री और दलित विमर्श आज साहित्य के केन्द्र में हैं। परम्परागत प्रतिमानों की धजियां उड़ाने, नए सांचों को गढ़ने, नए प्रतिमानों की स्थापना करते और साहित्य के नए

सौंदर्यशास्त्र की मांग करते ये विमर्श साहित्य में अपना स्थान बना चुके हैं।

भारतीय समाज में दलित स्त्री सबसे निचले पायदान पर रही है। शोषण के जितने भी अमानवीय रूप हो सकते हैं उन सबको उसने झेला है। पितृसत्ता और जातिवादी कुव्यवस्था के चलते वह सबसे ज्यादा ब्रत है। दलित लेखिकाओं ने अपने साहित्य में पितृसत्ता, सांस्कृतिक आतंकवाद, धार्मिक पाखंड, जाति व्यवस्था, दासता, परम्परागत आदर्शों तथा लैंगिक शोषण का पुरजोर विरोध किया है। दलित आंदोलन अम्बेडकरवादी विचारधारा से संपृक्त होने पर समानता, स्वतंत्रता और न्याय जैसे जीवन मूल्यों को अपनाने के बावजूद दलित स्त्री के प्रश्नों पर पितृसत्ताक दृष्टि ही रखे रहा। दलित स्त्री की कविता में एक बेचैन आर्तनाद की अनुगुंज साफ सुनाई देती है। सामाजिक प्रथाएं और रूढ़ियां किस प्रकार स्त्री को उसकी आज़ादी से बेखबर करती हैं, उसके सपनों को राख

पराधीनता की बेड़ियों में जकड़ा हुआ हमारा देश 1930 के आस-पास स्वतंत्रता के लिए पुरजोर कोशिश कर रहा था। 1931 की 14 मार्च को हिंदी की पहली बोलती फिल्म 'आलम-आरा' प्रदर्शित हुई थी इसके लगभग 9 दिन बाद प्रसिद्ध यानी कि 23 मार्च को देश के लिए अनमोल भगत सिंह को फांसी दी गई। पूरे देश में गुस्सा था। फ़िल्मी गीत और संगीत, फ़िल्में किसी भी देश में राष्ट्रीयता के भाव को जगाने और देश में देश-प्रेम की अलख जगाने बढ़ाने में महत्वपूर्ण भूमिका निभा सकते हैं। ब्रिटिश शासन अपने बल को किसी भी कीमत पर कम होता बर्दाश्त नहीं कर पा रहे थे इसलिए फ़िल्मों पर और फ़िल्मी गीत संगीत पर भी अपना शिकंजा कस रहे थे और समय-समय पर फ़िल्मों पर फ़िल्मी गीतों पर पाबंदियां लगा रहे थे। पाबंदियां जितनी अधिक लगती गयी देश में आजादी पाने की चाह उतनी ही तीव्र होती गई। फ़िल्में और फिल्म संगीत लोगों को साहस दे रहे थे, जोश भर रहे थे। पराधीनता की बेड़ियों को तोड़ डालने के लिए प्रोत्साहित कर रहे थे। कविताओं और गैर फ़िल्मी गीतों को प्रतिबंधित करना थोड़ा मुश्किल होता था, पर फ़िल्मों पर और फ़िल्मी गीतों पर सेंसर बोर्ड के माध्यम से शिकंजा कसना यानी की प्रतिबंध लगाना ज्यादा कठिन नहीं था। यही मुख्य कारण है कि आजादी प्राप्त करने से पहले कोई भी फिल्म प्रोड्यूसर महान शहीद भगत सिंह के जीवन पर आधारित फिल्म का निर्माण करने में असमर्थ ही रहे। हालांकि देश के स्वाधीन होने पर उन पर आधारित फ़िल्मों का निर्माण जरूर हुआ।

ब्रिटिश हुकूमत द्वारा लगाई गई अनगिनत पाबंदियों के बाद भी फिल्म निर्माताओं ने अपनी फ़िल्मों से, फ़िल्मी गीतों के जरिये देश के लोगों में देश-प्रेम को जगाया। राष्ट्रीयता को प्रोत्साहित किया। स्वाधीनता सेनानियों की ही तरह हमारे फिल्म निर्माताओं ने भी अपनी फ़िल्मों के जरिए देश की आजादी के लिए जाने वाले संघर्ष में अपना अमूल्य योगदान दिया। जब से हम बोलती फ़िल्मों का अस्तित्व पाते हैं उसके लगभग दो-तीन वर्ष के भीतर भले ही हमें सीधे तौर पर देश प्रेम पर आधारित रचनाएं, फ़िल्मों के माध्यम से सुनने को, देखने को नहीं मिली हो, पर लगभग 1935 में नगरदास नामक जैसे बेहतरीन संगीतकार ने प्रफुल्ल राय द्वारा निर्देशित 'भारत लक्ष्मी पिक्चर्स' के अंतर्गत आने वाली फिल्म 'बलिदान' के गीत (एक दिन तुम थे जगदगुरु, जग था उन्नत अभिलाषी, जागो-जागो भारत वासी) रच कर देश की जनता को स्वाधीनता के लिए प्रेरित किया। इसके बाद इसी वर्ष संगीतकार नागरदास नायक जी की ही धुन पर देश भक्ति भाव से भरा पंडित सुदर्शन द्वारा रचित गीत भी आया गीत के बोल थे 'भारत की दीन दशा का तुम्हें भारतवालों, कुछ ध्यान नहीं। फिल्म का नाम था 'कुंवारी या विधवा' ठीक-ठाक इन दिनों ही गीतों के गायककार के बारे में तो जानकारी नहीं मिल पाई पर

Abstract

Casazza and Kalton [2] studied the question of classifying the characteristic functions X_E so that $(X_E, 1, 1)$ generates a Weyl–Heisenberg frame which is equivalent to a classical problem of Littlewood in complex function theory. In this paper, Wilson frame set for a characteristic function of a measurable set is defined. Also, a characterization of the Wilson frame set in terms of the roots of polynomials is given.

Abstract

In this paper, we investigate the chaotic behaviour of maps having the almost average shadowing property by obtaining the relationship of the almost average shadowing property with different kinds of chaos. Moreover, we relate the notion of almost average shadowing property with some other types of shadowing properties, for instance, ergodic shadowing, \mathcal{F}_d -shadowing and d -shadowing. We also study the notion of almost average shadowing property for maps induced on hyperspaces. Our study is supported by providing counter-examples wherever necessary.

1. Introduction

Computer simulation of the trajectory of a point in discrete dynamical systems often produces pseudo-orbits. So to study the dynamical properties of the underlying dynamical system, it is important to determine the condition under which these numerically obtained pseudo-orbits can be traced by real trajectories of the system. Shadowing property makes it possible to approximate pseudo-orbits by real orbits of the system and this feature of shadowing property has made it an extremely significant and useful dynamical property in dynamical systems. There are several types of shadowing properties studied in the literature by now [8, 18, 31, 32]. Unlike the classical shadowing property, the notion of average shadowing property [5] and the notion of almost average shadowing property [6] deal with pseudo-orbits with average errors being very small whereas the notion of asymptotic average shadowing property [11] deals with pseudo-orbits with average errors tending to zero. These shadowing properties are also related to some useful dynamical properties [16, 17, 20, 22, 23, 29].

Another important concept in the theory of dynamical systems is chaos. The first mathematical definition of chaos was given by Li and Yorke in 1975 [25]. Since then, various types of chaos have been proposed and studied by many authors. The idea of chaos lies in the unpredictability of the behaviour of trajectories of the system. Each version of

ANALYSIS AND PREDICTION OF COVID-19 SPREAD USING NUMERICAL METHOD
Surbhi Madan, Ritu Arora, Poonam Garg and Dhiraj Kumar Singh

Abstract:
In this paper, we have discussed the impact of Coronavirus variants in a phase of 2021-22 along with a previous phase of 2020-21 in Italy. We analyse and compare the Covid-19 scenario in Italy for the period from October 04, 2020 to January 16, 2021 with a period from October 04, 2021 to January 16, 2022. For this study, we have used repeated multi-step differential transform method (RMsDTM). Also, we have predicted the number of active cases for 10 days following the period of study.

Keywords and phrases:
virus, pandemic, prediction, Italy, economy.

सार-संक्षेप

परा-विद्या तथा अपरा-विद्या दोनों की प्राप्ति में तत्त्वदर्शी गुरु का मार्गदर्शन चंद्रशाखा न्याय के माध्यम से शिष्य को बोध के स्तर पर ले जाने में अत्यावश्यक है। अनूत स्वर् को मूर्तिमान करने में तथा देव मूर्ति उपासना से प्रारंभ कर पारब्रम्ह के निराकार स्वरूप में स्वयं को लीन कर देने में गुरु ही एकमात्र माध्यम हैं। स्वयं को स्वरमय कर नादयोग में समाहित होना ही अथवा ज्ञानयोग, भक्तियोग एवं कर्मयोग द्वारा धुंध 'मैं' को अनंत 'अहम् ब्रह्मास्मि' में विलीन करना ही इन दोनों लक्ष्य की प्राप्ति गुरुकृपा से ही संभव है। इन पवित्र गन्तव्यों तक पहुँच बनाने में गुरु तथा शिष्य दोनों की सुपात्रता अभीष्ट है। उपनिषदों एवं गीतोक्त शिष्यात्व तथा 'गुरुत्व' के वांछित गुणों की चर्चा प्रस्तुत शोध प्रबंध में की गई है। संगीत को ईश्वरप्राप्ति की सुगम सौढ़ी कहा जाता है अतः इस लेख में संगीत एवं अध्यात्म मार्ग का अनुसरण करने में साम्यता का दिग्दर्शन कराया गया है। शोध प्रविधि में उपनिषदों का अध्ययन कर उनमें वर्णित गुरु तत्त्व व ज्ञानार्जन के मार्ग एवं संगीत के क्षेत्र में उनकी उपयोगिता का वर्णन है। अंततः निष्कर्ष रूप में उभय मार्गों में किंचित एकरूपता परिलक्षित की गई है।

मुख्य शब्द : संगीत, गुरु, अध्यात्म, विद्या, शिक्षक, शिष्य

शोध-पत्र

गुरुब्रह्मा गुरुविष्णु गुरुदेवो महेश्वरः

गुरुसाक्षात् परब्रह्म तस्मै श्री गुरुवे नमः॥

वेद कृत स्कंद पुराण के अंतर्गत 'गुरुगीता' में शिव एवं उमा संवाद में उपरोक्त शब्द कहे गए। गुरु ब्रह्मा है, गुरु विष्णु है, गुरु ही महेश्वर देव हैं, गुरु ही साक्षात् परब्रह्म हैं—श्री गुरु की हमारा नमस्कार। आध्यात्मिक रूप से उपरोक्त श्लोक का अर्थ गुरु की ही ईश्वरत्व की उपाधि प्रदान करना है। दार्शनिक रूप से देखा जाए तो ज्ञान का प्रस्फुटन करने में गुरु की भूमिका ब्रह्मा के समान विद्या विशेष में जन्म कराने से है। ज्ञान की बनाये रखने एवं उत्तरोत्तर वृद्धि में मार्गदर्शक गुरु विष्णु समान एवं अज्ञानता का नाश करने में हेतु होने के कारण महेश्वर के समान हैं। संगीत के क्षेत्र में गुरु के द्वारा शिष्य का पदार्पण व संगीत विषय से परिचय कराना संगीत में जन्म देने जैसा है [ब्रह्मा]। संगीत मार्ग पर अविचल शिष्य का मार्गदर्शन कर अग्रसर करना विष्णु सदृश पालन करना है और शिष्य के सांगीतिक दोषों का निवारण महेश्वर सदृश है।

लौकिक अथवा पारलौकिक ज्ञान तत्त्व की प्राप्ति करने के लिए प्रत्येक मनुष्य के जीवन में गुरु की अत्याधिक आवश्यकता होती है तभी तो भगवान् कृष्ण गुरु संदीपन के द्वारा और भगवान् राम गुरु वाशिष्ठ द्वारा दीक्षित हुए। हम सभी मानवों को गुरु का सान्निध्य ईश्वर की कृपा से प्राप्त होता है। गुरु द्वारा ही अपने-अपने इच्छित क्षेत्र में उचित मार्गों

का बोध कराया जाता है और कुछ समयंतराल पश्चात् साधक के अंतःस में यह सामर्थ्य जागृत कर दी जाती है कि साधनारत ज्ञान-पिपासु स्वयं अपनी त्रुटियों को देख कर उन्हें दूर करने की क्षमता विकसित कर पाए। गुरु शिष्य को उसी की भीतरी शक्तियों से परिणत करते हैं। भौतिक गुरु सूक्ष्म रूप से साधक के भीतर विवेक रूप में परिणत हो जाता है। इस प्रकार वह सहज ही लक्ष्य की ओर अग्रसर करा देता है। असतो मा सद्गमय, तमसो मा ज्योतिर्गमय, मृत्योर्मा अमृतं गमय॥

[बृहदारण्यकोपनिषद् अध्याय-1, ब्राह्मण-3, मंत्र-28] (1:2)

'हमें असत से सत की ओर, अँधेरे से उजाले की ओर तथा मृत्यु से अमरता की ओर ले चलो।' गुरु के द्वारा ही यह असंभव कार्य संभव किया जाता है।

बाहरी मैल तो जल से साफ हो जाती है परन्तु मन के संशय केवल गुरु द्वारा ही दूर किये जा सकते हैं। जब तक हम पुस्तक से ज्ञान प्राप्त करने में प्रयास रत रहते हैं तो हम भौतिक पदार्थ-ज्ञान के क्षेत्र तक ही सीमित रह जाते हैं परन्तु जब हम गुरु के मुखारविंद से उनका अनुभव ज्ञान प्राप्त करते हैं तो उस समय एक गुरु की चेतना एक शिष्य को वेदना को संबोधित कर रही होती है। जिस प्रकार मूर्तिकार एक शिला में से अवांछनीय पत्थर के अंश को हथोड़े व छेने से हटा देता है उसी प्रकार एक गुरु शिष्य के भीतर के अज्ञान को कठिन परिश्रम द्वारा दूर करने

पाणिनीय तन्त्र में भाषावैज्ञानिक तत्त्व

ज्योति
सहायक-आचार्य, संस्कृत विभाग

दिल्ली विश्वविद्यालय

‘वाचा सुष्टिमसृजत्’ अर्थात् विश्व की उत्पादिका वाणीमयी सृष्टि ही मानवीय व्यवहार के रूप में सृष्टि की संचालिका भी है। सार्थक शब्दों का समूह ये वाक्तत्त्व मानव व्यवहार का अभिन्न अंग है। शब्दों के माध्यम से ही अर्थों का प्रकाशन होता है, अतः इसे प्रकाशक कहा जाता है। दण्डी शब्द को ज्योति की संज्ञा देते हुए कहते हैं-

इदमन्धतमं कृत्स्नं जायेत भुवनत्रयम्।
यदि शब्दाह्वयं ज्योतिरासंसारान् दीप्येत।¹

सम्पूर्ण जगत् या संसार को आरम्भ करने के कारण शब्द को आरम्भक तथा संसार में जो पूर्वकाल से ही वर्तमान है उसे उजागर करने के कारण आविष्कारक कहा जाना अतिशयोक्ति पूर्ण न होगा।

शब्दतत्त्व अथवा वाक्तत्त्व की महत्ता का एक अन्यतम उदाहरण यह भी है कि षड्वेदाङ्गों - शिक्षा, कल्प, व्याकरण, ज्योतिष, छन्द, एवं निरुक्त में से चार वेदाङ्ग वाक्तत्त्व का विश्लेषण एवं भाषा की वैज्ञानिक पद्धतियों का उद्घाटन करते हैं।

शिक्षा ग्रन्थ - ध्वनि एवं वर्ण उच्चारण सम्बन्धी तथ्यों का उद्घाटन करता है जिसे आधुनिक युग में Phonetics कहा जाता है।

निरुक्त - शब्दों की व्युत्पत्ति एवं व्याख्या प्रस्तुत करता है। आधुनिक भाषाविज्ञान में इसे ही Etymology के नाम से जाना जाता है।

छन्द - वाणि की क्रमबद्ध लयता एवं नियमिताक्षर का विज्ञान प्रस्तुत करने के कारण वाक्तत्त्व का विश्लेषण करता है तथा व्याकरण- तो समग्र रूप से वर्ण, पद, वाक्य निर्माण की पद्धति सम्बन्धी नियमों से संवलिता है।

इतना ही नहीं वेदाङ्गों के उपरान्त भी वाक्तत्त्व के उच्चारण संबंधी रहस्यों एवं वैज्ञानिक तथ्यों का उद्घाटन करने हेतु शिक्षा ग्रंथों के अंतर्गत प्रातिशाख्य ग्रन्थों की रचना भी वाक्तत्त्व की महत्ता को उपस्थापित करती है। इन सभी का एकमात्र उद्देश्य शास्त्रों का सम्यक् ज्ञान कराना एवं उनकी रक्षा करना ही रहा है।

पतंजलि ने भी महाभाष्य में व्याकरण शास्त्र के प्रयोजनों का वर्णन करते हुए स्पष्ट लिखा है- रक्षोहागमलध्वसन्देहाः व्याकरणस्य प्रयोजनम्।² व्याकरण ही है जो हमें वर्णों का ज्ञान उनके उच्चारण का तरीका, शब्दों के निर्माण वह इनके प्रयोग के विषय में बताता है। इसीलिए व्यक्ति अन्य शास्त्रों को पढ़े अथवा न पढ़े परन्तु उच्चारण शुद्धता के लिए व्याकरण को आवश्यक रूप से पढ़ना ही चाहिए किसी ने उचित कहा है

यद्यपि बहुधाधीये तथापि पठ पुत्र व्याकरणम्
स्वजनः श्वजनोमाभूत सकलं शकलं सक्च्छकृत्।

5वीं शती ईसा पूर्व ³ महर्षि पाणिनि द्वारा अष्टाध्यायी में संस्कृत जैसी विशाल भाषा के नियमों को मात्र 4000 सूत्रों में वर्णोपदेश से लेकर शास्त्रोपदेश, धातुसूत्र, गण व उणादि से संवलिता कर भाषा के साधुत्व का प्रतिपादन किया गया। विश्व का प्रथम व्याकरण ग्रन्थ संस्कृत भाषा का ही है। जिस प्रकार संस्कृत भाषा समग्र रूप से भारतीय इतिहास की प्रकाशिका है वैसे ही व्याकरण शास्त्र इस संस्कृत भाषा का प्रकाशक ग्रंथ कहा जा सकता है। भाषा में शुद्धता एवं प्रयोग की सुगमता व्याकरण से ही सम्भव है, मानों संस्कृत वाङ्मय रूपी महल पर चढ़ने के लिए व्याकरण प्रथम सोपान है। जिससे परिचित होने के उपरान्त ही शास्त्र में गति संभव है। भर्तृहरि इस ओर संकेत करते हुए कहते हैं -

न सोऽस्ति प्रत्ययो लोके यः शब्दानुगमादुते।
अनुविद्धमिव ज्ञानं सर्वं शब्देनैव भासते।⁴

अष्टाध्यायी पर महामुनि कात्यायन का विस्तृत वार्तिक ग्रन्थ है और सूत्र तथा वार्तिकों पर भगवान् पतंजलि का विशद विवरणात्मक ग्रन्थ महाभाष्य है। संक्षेप में सूत्र, वार्तिक एवं महाभाष्य तीनों सम्मिलित रूप में ‘पाणिनीय व्याकरण’ कहलाता है। मुनित्रय (पाणिनि, कात्यायन एवं पतंजलि) द्वारा संस्कारित एवं समाकल्पित इस व्याकरण को मुख्य अर्थात् प्रधान की संज्ञा दी गई है तथा प्रधान में किया गया श्रम ही पर्याप्त है-प्रधानं च षट्सु अंगेषु

अद्भुत रामायण में एक अध्ययन: शक्ति स्वरूपा सीता

डॉ. हर्ष बाला

सहायकाचार्य

जानकी देवी मेमोरियल महाविद्यालय, नई दिल्ली

रामायण आदिकाव्य के नाम से प्रचलित प्रथम महाकाव्य है, संपूर्ण विश्व के लिए प्रेरणादायक वाल्मीकि रामायण की वेद तुल्य प्रतिष्ठा है, रामकथा की व्यापकता और लोकप्रियता का आधार वाल्मीकि रामायण ही है। 24000 श्लोकों में लिखी गई रामायण में विष्णु के अवतार के रूप में राम की प्रतिष्ठा है, कालांतर में परवर्ती पुराणों और उप-पुराणों में राम विषयक सामग्री उत्तरोत्तर लगी धी, संस्कृत साहित्य तथा अन्य साहित्य में स्वतंत्र रूप से राम विषयक रचनाएं होने लगी तथा धार्मिक साहित्य में अध्यात्म रामायण, अद्भुत रामायण और आनंद रामायण आदि अनेक रामायणों की रचना की गई। धार्मिक ग्रंथों की श्रृंखला में अद्भुत रामायण का महत्वपूर्ण स्थान है, अद्भुत रामायण 27 सर्गों और 1343 श्लोकों में लिखी गई कृति है जिसमें सीता के अद्भुत स्वरूप और पराक्रमों का वर्णन किया गया है। अद्भुत रामायण अधिकांश अध्यात्म रामायण से प्रभावित दिखाई देती है, रामचरितमानस के प्रथम खंड में अद्भुत रामायण का प्रभाव परिलक्षित होता है, इस दृष्टि से अद्भुत रामायण यह शीर्षक ब्यर्थ दिखाई देता है जैसे अध्यात्म रामायण में राम के मूल स्वरूप का तात्त्विक दृष्टि से वर्णन किया गया है, उसी प्रकार अद्भुत रामायण में आदिशक्ति के रूप में सीता के मूल स्वरूप का वर्णन किया गया है। अद्भुत रामायण में जब देवी सीता विकराल रूप धारण करके सहस्रमुख रावण का वध करती है तब राम साक्षात् शक्ति स्वरूपिणी सीता को सहस्रनाम से स्तुति करते हैं।

प्रधानपुरुषेशाना महापुरुषसाक्षिणी।

सदा शिवा विषमूर्तिर्देवमूर्तिरमूर्तिका ॥

(अद्भुतरामायण, सर्ग 25 श्लोक-25 से 152)

अद्भुत रामायण में यह भी स्पष्ट लिखा है जो इस अद्भुत सहस्रनाम का नित्य पाठ करता है, उसे परम पद की प्राप्ति होती है।

भारद्वाज महाभाग यशोवतस्तोत्रमद्भुतम् ।

ENVIRONMENTAL ETHICAL ISSUES: A CRITICAL SURVEY OF PROBLEMS AND PROSPECTS
Ms Sulagna Pal

ABSTRACT

This article deals with the current stature of environmental ethics in philosophy as well in the life of people. It also critiques on the journey and effective change made by efforts of environmentalists. The aim of environmental ethics has always been to identify the missing "key" in human life, one might say it's the forgotten duty & devotion towards the environment. There have been few methods used in the past to awaken the conscience of humans, obviously not effective enough to stir-up a change. Considering the modern development in the world around us, there has been significant development in behavioral sciences, which leads us to alternatives which we can implement towards changing people's underlying understanding regarding the environment.

ENVIRONMENT AND HUMAN HISTORY

Recent studies on environmental ethics both in India and the western world in general, and critical studies made by classical moral ethicists in particular, deal with a range of issues that are primarily based on values and attitudes. The classical moral ethicists including Aristotle, Immanuel Kant, and others emphasis on rationality and had drawn explicit lines between humans as rational creatures and the "other" living creatures as heteronomous. Nevertheless, the eastern environmental ethics propounded by Confucianism and the holistic environmental ethics propagated by Buddhism in India, recognize that the human beings are very much part of the environment. The Eastern environmental ethics, to a large extent, emphatically reject many of the deeply embedded assumptions of Western traditions and continue to evoke a spiritual dimension to the very idea of environmental ethics. The existing literature suggests that the prevailing ethical ideals are not adequately addressing and motivating conservation behaviors both in the East and the West. This study suggests that one needs to look further beyond the beliefs, emotions, perceptions, and identities to understand why environmental ethics are not transcending beyond beliefs, emotions, perceptions and identities. Concerns towards the future generations need to be emphasized now more than ever before, in order to create a drastic change in the attitude. This paradigm shift in focus will, undoubtedly, serve as a driving force, which, in turn

What comes to your mind when you think about the environment? Plants, trees, soil, air, water, or destruction? I wouldn't define the environment in these confined words as it is not just a mere definition but a feeling & a conditional on which everything survives. Environment earlier was acknowledged by humans as a vital element of their life hence there was a sense of responsibility, respect and duty towards it (The Five Elementals)¹. But over the course of time a belief that the environment is for granted started to emerge.² It's an irony, in the race of getting urbanized, people have forgotten their limits/primary source of evolution. And it's almost hard to believe the journey of man from Stone Age, to cattle rearing, to copper age, to getting urbanized; having surplus economy leading to expansion of occupation and so on. Even today, we see human-beings struggling to do more, to want more; not sure about what's "more". There's nothing wrong in wanting "more" but it's an individual's duty to think about the ethical & moral complications of their act. Having lost the sense of identity, humans now are more vulnerable than ever; and have been using these technological advancements as a distraction. Although not everything can be blamed upon, as it was the vicious intents of few which started the trail of thoughts in the hand-me-down tradition. What's necessary is that, now is the time to realize how far we have come in order to call ourselves as urbanized, no matter how far-reaching impact it had on the proliferation of cultures, emergence of new professions and economy but then again what's the use of these subjective realities when the environment is falling down. As Callicott conveyed, these things hold nothing but instrumental value unlike the true relation of love, respect and admiration for the environment holding intrinsic value.

¹Namely, earth (prithvi), water (jala), fire (tejas), wind (vayu) and space (akasha) are described as the primary block of everything around us.

²Some environmentalists have held western tradition responsible for the rise of industrialization and development of anthropocentrism.

THE INSCRIPTION OF TECHNOLOGY

THE CHANGING ARCHITECTURE

(PART I)

—RAJSHREE CHANDRA*

With innovation in genetic engineering now being rewarded in the form of intellectual property rights, there are new things that are beginning to count as property and as objects of human invention—plant varieties, seeds, germplasm, genetic sequences, DNA, and so on. To bring the realm of “biology” within the ambit of intellectual property, to juridify aspects of the biological as products of human invention is to bring new epistemic objects into visibility. While these are revealed through practices of biotechnology, law translates it into a capacity for monopolistic appropriation for biotech innovators. The new correlatives of innovation and intellectual property re-engineer not just the biology of an organism, but the very categories that organised property and intellectual property. What instrumentalities of technology and law co-produce biotic property? I examine these instrumentalities in a two-paper series: while the first paper seeks to lay out the work of technology in the creation of new biological artefacts, and consequently new economic spaces and property claims, the second paper seeks to examine the role of law in translating inventive claims as property claims.

* Rajshree Chandra is Professor of Political Science at Janki Devi Memorial College, Delhi University, and Senior Visiting Fellow at the Centre for Policy Research, Delhi. Her research interest, and most of her writing, is primarily at the intersection of political philosophy, law and politics. Her most recent publication is Competing Nationalisms: The Sacred and Political Life of Jagat Narain Lal (Penguin, 2021). She is the author of two previous books titled, The Cunning of Rights: Law, Life, Biocultures (OUP, 2016) and Knowledge as Property: Issues in the Moral Grounding of Intellectual Property Rights (OUP, 2010). She has also written several political commentaries for newspapers and news portals.

THE INSCRIPTION OF LAW IN LIFE:
INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY AND
COMMODIFICATION OF LIFE
(PART 2)

I. INTRODUCTION

What demarcates intellectual property from ordinary forms of property is its ability to demonstrate an inventive step. In fact, the grant of intellectual property is contingent on the demonstration of novelty and non-obviousness. A foundational demand therefore for patents is that invention is at an "adequate distance beyond or above the state of the art",¹ and distinguishable from artefacts of nature. It premises itself on clear distinctions between the "grown" and the "made", between acts of invention and discovery, between products of nature and human manufactures, between public domain and non-obvious knowledge. "Obvious" ideas/knowledge are often in the public domain and are typically designated as prior art, oral tradition, common practice, commonly shared knowledge that cannot be claimed as original acts of individual creation.² IP claims are inextricably tied to the idea of authorship and invention. Traditional, indigenous knowledge falls short of this criterion as it often is orally transmitted, inter-generational, often admitting natural or supernatural agency and therefore making the distinction between man-made and natural and godly indistinct for assignment of authorship.³

It was in this context that the enclosure of biogenetic commons seemed to pose a set of problems not commonly encountered by IP in other realms. It was one thing to demonstrate items of "manufacture" as products of human innovation; it was quite another to demonstrate "nature", or its parts thereof, as products and projects of human invention. How could living organisms be shown to be products of human invention when patent law remains tied to its own version of a proprietary distinction between nature and manufactures? Indeed, the distinction itself should have been sufficient to disqualify any normative or ecological claims

² Elsewhere I have critiqued knowledge claims as "original" invoking Thomas Kuhn's theory of knowledge as essentially historical and cumulative. See, Rajshree Chandra, Knowledge as Property Issues in the Moral Grounding of Intellectual Property Rights (Oxford University Press 2010).

Changing Dynamics of Gender Inequality in the Context of COVID-19 Pandemic in India

Debahuti Brahmachari

DOI: <https://doi.org/10.31357/ijgppa.v3i01.5570>

Abstract

With the second-largest nation in terms of population, India has been one of the most affected countries by the COVID-19 pandemic. One of the repercussions of the ongoing pandemic can be noticed in terms of the widened deeply embedded gender inequalities in India. The post-recovery period would be immensely complex. The fear that the world is witnessing is the amplification of the existing gender gap or inequality. The pandemic has once again proven that the ill effects have a differential impact on both the sexes. Hence, an attempt through this research has been made to understand the changing dynamics of gender inequality in India due to the impact of COVID-19. The main objective of the paper is to find out the devastating impact of COVID-19 on the socio-economic structures that enhance the existing gender inequality, and how far it has impacted the deeply embedded gender inequalities. In this regard, qualitative research methods with descriptive analysis have been used. The literature and narratives available related to various dimensions of gender inequality have been reviewed to understand the differential impacts of the pandemic on women. The need to have an engendering governance outlook has been highlighted. No public health approach should neglect the gendered impact of such a crisis. The research tries to sum up with proactive strategy recommendations that the state should embark upon both as long-term and short-term goals.

Risk, causation and containment of Covid-19 pandemic in India: a sociological interpretation

Ruby Bhardwaj

Department of Sociology, Janki Devi Memorial College, University of Delhi, Delhi, India

ABSTRACT

Pandemics have a collective character. They compel us to reflect upon our collective norms, values and behaviour forcing us to abandon, alter and renew our collective 'normal'. The paper cogitates the implications of Covid-19 in India through a multi-disciplinary perspective. The boundaries between biology and culture, self and the other, individual and the collective stand reconfigured in the wake of the epidemic. The analysis of emergent infectious diseases reveals that cultural and anthropogenic factors have a predominant role in shaping the progression of pathogens to a disease outbreak. The epidemic has precipitated an atmosphere of risk and uncertainty. Risk Theory provides the theoretical underpinnings to interpret the sociological impact of Covid-19. An overarching discourse on risk has shaped the decisions at the international, national, and inter-personal level. The heightened perception of the risk of the other is mitigated by exclusionary practices, stigmatizing and blaming of the other. Reliance on digital surveillance apps to negotiate the risk, lockdowns, quarantines, containments, surveillance, and social distancing norms that have imbalanced power dynamics between the State and citizens, demonstrate the Foucauldian concept of 'biopower'. The pandemic calls for adoption of a sociological approach and to revisit the epistemes of Sociology to accommodate the new normal.

Introduction

The havoc caused by the Covid-19 pandemic has left the world paralyzed. Every institution has had to reboot itself to cope with the altered demands. Economy lies crippled with imposition of lockdowns, unemployment rates have soared deepening the schism between the rich and the poor. Medical science has faced an acute challenge in cognizing and controlling the disease in the absence of a designated line of treatment. Bureaucracy with the guidance and support of medical science has been overworked in its attempts to manage the pandemic. The overarching global risk of contracting the SARS CoV-2 is combatted through counteractive measures involving lockdowns, quarantines, contact tracing and surveillance that have intense sociological ramifications.

Abstract

Socialisation is often a role played by the society as a whole with contributions from all aspects of the surrounding of ones rearing. It's believed to be informal, non-uniform and lifelong as a process. Most societies are patrilineal in their nature and therefore are dominated by the patrilineal aspects in socialisation. Patriline and bloodline appear to be synonymous in people's conception of reproduction. This study aims to underline the implications of the metaphor of conception as the seed sown in the soil, used for biological symbolization of descent, as well as to understand the nature of relations between the sexes and their relative rights and positions. In India the role of a patrilineal society in the rearing of the young is a relatively less researched subject when viewed in the context of the process of socialisation. Therefore, it is essential to understand this relationship in order to bring about any positive change if so required. In this study, we will aim to highlight the various aspects of socialisation in a patrilineal society concentrating more on the female gender. While attempting to do so, we shall also acknowledge the differences that are seen in regions, class and other such distinctions made by the society. We look to create a framework that shall facilitate further understanding on similar grounds and related subjects.

Keywords: patrilineal, socialization, motherhood, gender, society, role, practices, symbols

Introduction

The metaphor and its implications for the metaphor of conception as the seed sown in the soil, used for biological symbolization of descent, to understand the nature of relations between the sexes and their relative rights and positions. Two related points emerge clearly. First, an essentially unequal relationship is reflected in and emphasized through the use of these symbols, and second, the symbolism is utilized by the culture to underplay the significance of the women's contribution to biological reproduction. While trying her down to the supreme duty of motherhood, this symbolism is instrumental in denying her the natural right over her own children and in creating and sustaining an ideology in which strategic resources of both types - material as well as human remain in the hands of men.

The concept and its implications for the position of women and their rights in strategic resources have to be seen in the context of a patrilineal kinship structure and an agrarian economy in which land is the principal resource, the other resource being labour. In such a system, rights of ownership, control, use of land are governed by the patrilineal principle. So also is marital residence, with operative notions regarding rights in the house as a physical structure as well as in the household as a composite group.

It should be kept in mind that gender differences that are culturally produced are, almost invariably, interpreted as being rooted in biology, as part of 'the natural order of things'. To give one relevant example, in patrilineal India the commonly-held idea regarding the roles of father and mother in procreation is that man provides the seed—the essence—while the woman provides the field which receives the seed and nourishes it. A child shares the father's blood. Thus, while the natal group emphasises woman's transferability or her non-functional nature from the point of view of perpetuation of the group and continuity of the family, the husband's group emphasises her

Title: The Magha Traders and Kings and their Coinage in Historical Perspective

Department: History

THE MAGHA TRADERS AND KINGS AND THEIR COINAGE IN HISTORICAL PERSPECTIVE

MANISHA S. AGNIHOTRI

Introduction: Nomenclature of the Maghas

Generally most of the names of the Magha Kings ends with the word 'Magha' as surname. The word 'Magha' has been variously interpreted. One may equate the Maghas and seek their derivation from the word 'Maghavan', which means Indra, connecting, them with an ancient powerful deity. Others relate them to the name of an island by this name and to the country of the others (the Mlecchas). The names of the Maghas has phonetic resemblance with 'Maga' or 'Moga'. Some take them to be indigenous people whereas others consider the word Maga to be foreign. In view of the multiple opinions on the etymology and derivation of the word, nothing can be said with certitude. There are some scholars who suggest that this dynasty was founded by a Lieutenant of the Kuṣāṇa named Magha.¹

Maghas in Literary Sources

There are three literary sources which furnish some details about the Magha merchants and the rulers by this name. These literary sources may be enumerated as (i) The Purāṇas (ii) The Mahābhārata and (iii) The Dīvyāvadāna. The Maghas are properly described as the most powerful people (mahābalāḥ)² in the Purāṇas. The Purāṇas also mention nine prudent kings of Kośala³ but they do not give details regarding their rule. More prolific details about the Magha merchants and rulers comes from the Supriyāvadānam in the Dīvyāvadāna.⁴ An analysis of the internal details of the Avadāna brings out the prosperity of trade and commerce as enterprising activities of the leader of a mercantile caravan (sārthavāha), the Magha Chief Supriyā and his five hundred fellow traders, who embarked on a very perilous journey along with him for getting precious jewels of various descriptions from the region of the Badaradvīpa, situated in the lap of the Himalayan range. The fascinating and awe-inspiring accounts of the mercantile mission starting from Varanasi and passing through the city of Rauhitaka (Modern Rohatka, near Delhi) and at last terminating with the arrival and fulfilment of the mission at Badara

Title: IT'S ABOUT CRIMINALISING DISSENT

Department: Political Science

Year: 2022

According to the National Crime Records Bureau data, a total of 156 cases of sedition were pending in 2017. In that year, only 27 cases could be disposed of at the police level by withdrawing the case or submitting a chargesheet. (Illustration: Dinkar Sasi)

Since 2010, Indians have spent nearly 3 million hours in prison on charges of sedition. An accused is most likely to spend up to 50 days in prison until a trial court grants bail and up to 200 days until a high court does so. The exhaustive database of Article 14 (corroborated by the NCRB data) reveals that more than 13,000 Indians are trapped in a black hole since 2010.

It is time, therefore, that the sedition law (IPC, Section 124 A) is consigned to the bin. However, as we wait with bated expectation after the Supreme Court order (to keep the 152-year old sedition law in abeyance), and after Prime Minister Narendra Modi's willingness to reconsider the colonial law in the spirit of Azadi ka Amrit Mahotsav, a cautionary check is in order.

If there was one ethos that cut through the various nationalist-ascetic narratives, it was the idea of Seva or service. So integral was the idea of service to both Gandhian and Hindu nationalist practice that it became a core value of nationalist consciousness. Drawing much of its content from Vivekananda's teachings and Gandhi's practice, many freedom-fighters like Jagat Narain believed that in Seva lay the route to both individual freedom and social transformation. From Vivekananda, he imbibed that he who directs his activities

'Trial by process' is the political and organisational logic of the UAPA.

An 84-year-old Jesuit Father, Stan Swamy, charged for inciting violence in Bhima Koregaon (BK), died inside the panoptic walls of the Taluja jail on July 5. Despite his age, despite his Parkinson's-ravaged body, despite his tremors, despite his Covid infection, despite all his frailties, he had been denied bail repeatedly. Rather than his

GOVERNMENT HEALTH POLITICS RIGHTS 28/APR/2021

The past year while all of us battled the novel coronavirus, I lived with the added burden and fear of cancer.

Cancer care and treatment during a pandemic is hard, very hard. During my frequent visits to the hospital, the innumerable procedures, therapies, tests, diagnostics, the uncountable surface contacts, I could see the virus just about everywhere. In the month of December, we counted the number of hospital visits from May 2020, till December end – 61 days. On those 61 days we had some interface or the other with a hospital or a diagnostic centre.
